A: Who are you talking to?
B: I am talking to Jo about music.
A: What are you talking about?
B: A concert next week.

1. Put the words in order

a. you / who / with / working / are / ?

_____

b. talking / what / about / you / are / ?

_____

c. for / these posters / are / what / ?

2. Read your project notes

You are organising a book swap.
You are talking to Rosa about donations.
You are working with the library.
Your posters are for a neighbourhood open day.

3. Ask about your partner's project

First, tell each other the name of your project. Then ask questions.
Do not read all your notes aloud. Write a few words as you listen.

Help: Who are you talking to? / What are you talking about?
Who are you working with? / What are your posters for?

Partner's project: _____
Talking to: _____ About: _____
Working with: _____
Posters for: _____

4. Introduce the project

Use your notes to tell another person about your partner's project.
Your partner checks: Is everything right? Improve one question together. Then try a new project.

A question can end in to, with, about or for. This is normal English.
