

How Can Teachers Personalise English Lessons for Learners?

S06E16 | For teachers to adapt to their learners

Purpose

Connect the target language to the learner's goals, experiences, opinions or realistic future situations. Personalisation becomes useful when it gives learners a genuine reason to choose and use the new language.

Try this in your next lesson

Where might you use this language?

Our suggested routine

One relevant follow-up can turn generic practice into language the learner is much more likely to remember.

- ☐ Where might you use this language?
- ☐ Has anything similar happened to you?
- ☐ Which example fits your work or life best?
- ☐ What would you change to make this situation realistic for you?
- ☐ Would you rather answer about yourself or invent an example?

After the attempt

What worked? What needs another model or a smaller step? Note one change for next time.

Read the full explanation and examples:
howtoenglishpod.com - S06E16 article